1492" Bobs Up Again at the Harlem Opera-House.

The Bifou Theatre, a house usually devoted to farce-comedy, had a spectacular entertainment last night, in the shape of "The South Before the War." It introduced a number of colored performers in episodes of antebellum days. Some tuneful plantation melodies were sung, and there were plenty of buck supplied acceptable music, and gixty ople appeared at a darky camp meeting. This play will be seen for one week

Walter Jones was on hand, as the tramp, and Theresa Vaughn was there as the Infants. Richard Harlow, as the Daisy Queen of Spain, was as majestic as ever, and the Kilanyi Living Pictures were not for-The extravaganza went very

COLUMBUS THEATRE. Chauncey Olcott was the star at the Columbus Theatre, Harlom, last night. He appeared in the Hibernian comedy, entitled "The Irish Artist," in which he is able to atone for dramatic shortcomings by his splendld vocal effort. Olcott's songs have made a big hit. In the company were the sprightly Miss Effe Germon, Daniel Gupether, Luke Martin and Lotta Lynne. But the play and its cast are of less consequence than its Haller and Hart who have been favoring New York a good deaf of late, because they are shortly going to separate, presented their perennial farce-comedy, "Later On," at the American Theatre last night. It is still lively enough to induce laughter, and the work of the stars is quite as funny as it ever was. They have an extremely good company, which includes Molile Fuller, Carrie De Mar and Mark Murphy.

NIBLO'S GARDIEN.

NIBLO'S GARDEN. NIBLO'S GARDEN.

It has been a long time since New York has seen the effervescent Neille McHenry, and she was warmly welcomed at Niblo's Garden last night. She appeared as Miss Electra, the equestrienn, in the farce known as "A Night at the Circa." Miss McHenry has lost none of her old-time buoyancy, and New York has not yet tired of her. She worked very indisatriously, and her company gave her valuable assistance, GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

"Rosedale" was the play at the Grand to Opera-House last night, with the same cast and scenery that were used in the recent enyagement at the Star Theatre, very old-fashloned. Many of the new plays that we have had this season are less interesting. The part of Elliott Grey, mrde famous by Lester Wallack, was played by Joseph Haworth, a young actor of whose methods New York has frequently approved.

PEOPLE'S THEATER.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.

"Paul Kauvar," the late Steele Mackaye's powerful melodrama, was presented at the People's Theatre last night. The play deals with the exciting episodes of the French Revolution, and some of its situations are highly impressive. It has been altered somewhat since its original production. It was very well interpreted by Eugene Robinson's company, and the scenie effects were exceed-ingly handsome. H. R. JACOBS THEATRE.

H. R. JACOBS THEATRE.

Hundreds of small boys fought their way in to the matines performance of "The Power of Gold," at H. R. Jacobs Theatre, yesterday, and the evening performance was equally well attended, although the small boy was less in evidence. "The Pawer of Gold" is a somewhat conventional English melodrama. that is equipped with some very realistic scenery. The pictures of old London were quite interesting. There was a competent cast.
